We ask him not to hear. We speak ten. Treason is rife in the land. A project is of oot for the overthrow of constitutional libert in the United States. No faction or individual onfesses the crime, but the fact is proclaimed all from every stump in the country. Can be doubted? If not, then is there any other t be doubted? If not, then is there any other interest whatever which can engage the citi-cen's solicitude in the midst of a question so remendous? Whither are we tending—to seace or to war? Against whom is this now ebellion projected? Who are the traitors? Whence are their motives? What are their lisguises and what their proposed ends? These are terrible questions. Is there an surroutions, and naving found it, fearlessly execute it." In 1806: "It only remains to be seen whether the courage, capacity and virtue of the people are adequate to the task of overnith throwing and crushing the conspiracy," etc.

But it is uscless to multiply citations. A gambler in the hells of political profligacy, one of these public enemies, if from the North, orled "Union," during the war, for the same in 1860—18 is "reconstruction" in 1866 that is loud in the throat of treason. But there is more proof of the public danger.

Upon the submission of the insurgent army and the supervention of an anomalous interval in military eclipse to civil order was dependent for its progress solely upon the tact with which the Commander-in-Chief could, step by step, withdraw military agency, there was no body in the country conscious of the least ob- scurity in the principle to apply. Sectley, like an ature, abhors a vacuum, and as there were sname. We ask him not to hear, We speak to men.

We propose to reason upon this fearful theme. We offer our analysis of the situation of the country and will stand by all its logical consequences. We will argue from the truth, and if we unwittingly prove that those who abjure the Constitution and demand to suplant it with a scheme of their own are loyal, and that those who uphold the Constitution against them are traitors, then down with the traitors. Be the boot of treason on either leg, it is that we assail. Be constitutional liberty on either side, it is that we defend.

We harge the class of partisan zealots, known as radical leaders, with compassing an early and violent overthrow of the Government. They know that this charge is true.

and that those who updoed the Constitution fractions. Be the body of resease on state legislation of the Constitution of the C and tyrannical men do not. Like the traitors of 1861, those of 1866 extel liberty, civil rights, the Constitution and the. Unson with ravishing eloquence, while cherishing in their secret traoms a settled despair of free government in the world; a conviction that a despotism is inevitably, to come and stay, and a desperate and indomitable vow to seize the power themselves, and so employ it as to perpetuate it to them and their successors.

We warned the people last winter. We were aimost alone in our open charge of revolutionary plots and designs. Now, the radicals themselves, throughout the land, proclaiming their repudiation of the Constitution, admit the probabilities of civil war. Is the confessed enemies of the Constitution to be its defenders against the apprehenced revolt?

The radical admission is full of fearful portent. No man or set of men can be trusted with our liberties. They are secure only in the parchment record of the authentic public will. He that hesitstes to obey it is a traitor, and if a public man, is a public enemy. He is stricken with the Just for rule and leads to ruin. Shrink from him. A bad ambition will fight for power, whether it deafens the conscious of an Englishman, maddens the soul of a Frenchman, or rots the heart of an American, whether it brutalized the Asyrnan, intoxicated the Persian, transformed the Roman, or corrupted the Greek, the lines was everywhere the same, and has never confessed itself. And what is it? It is the father of oppression, the forger of chains, the minister of murder. Anarchy is its opportunity, cruelty its pastime, and falsehood its genius. It is the necessary fos to all governments, it was the sole sin of Satan, and is the wong wreaker of the world. Will the people enthrone it here? Gerrett Smith, in a remarkable letter ear in 1861, embodied the entire radical conception of the crisis in the vivid figure of the nation rising in its manhood, shaking off the Constitution and all the civisms of the republic, as an old garmens, and starting forth naked to provide itself anew. The rebellion, it is true, was in the Bouth. Dute bellion, it is true, was in the Bouth. Dute revolution seemed breaking out in the North, and, consequently, all that these plotters seek to-day they supposed would be consummated to their hand by the fact of a revolutionary conquest of the South. But a constitutional coercion was the popular and the Executive theory, and they had no recourse but to employ a bolsterous affectation of adhesion to that theory—axpessed conclusively by the simple and sublime words of "Union cause"—while exerting their utmost to make the coercion as revolutionary, as sangularly, as exasperating, and as unsparing as possible; for perpetual disaffection in the South was, and yet is, their only hope of permanent power in the North.

But President Liacolus's tolerance might so meliorate vistories of the Union army as to revive loyalty in the South and restore peace before they could rive their chains on the subject section, and through that upon their own. I This would drive them back to obscurity again. He was, therefore, pressed by the most extraordinary clamor, expostulation, and threats; the popular excitement was lished into frenzy, and it is entiment set affoat that if the Administration "lagged in the work they should be pushed from their stools." A hero was wanted, to be ready. Usurpation was to be the recourse. McClellan was glorified to the skies. But without sympathy for their ends or ambition for crime he was discarded. Fremont was imported. But a vainglory, bordering upon lunacy, exposed him to swift contempt. Lane, of Kansasa, was patronized for a brief but luddrous interval. Again and again Butler—their first, last, and best choice—was pushed into chosen opportunities; if but for a de RESTAURANT.

military shame and cruel slaughter of brave Union men. At every-step of his policy Mr. Lincoin was impeded, distracted, and dogged by these bad men. The Union cause was so popular and he was so filly and generally regarded as its true exponent, in spite of their animadversion, and counter agitation, that they could not dare take public issue with him. Here and there, indeed, one would break out, but the line of demarcation between the Union cause and the cause of these conspirators, is clearly as day seen in the cefebrated attempt made by some of them, in 1864, to absorb the Union sentiment, with a failure so miserable as to have been forgotten already. Unsurpation seing then, as now, their aim, they charged it upon President Lincoin then, as they do now upon Mr. Johnson. In the Wade Davis manifesto, in which others were too prudent then to join, these accusers charge Mr. Lincoin with opposing their scheme of "r. construction," for the purpose of securing, for his own re-election, the electoral votes of the South through his restoration scheme, declaring that he thus held these "votes at the dictation of his personal ambition."

The Atlantic Monthly contains the factions' latest and most significant manifesto. It says:

"The question between the President and latest and most significant manifesto. It says:
"The question between the President and Congress is then this: Shall the ten States be at once recognized, thus securing to the old slave States thirty representatives and thirty electoral votes to which they have no title, or shall they be required to accept, as a condition precedent, an amendment to the Constitution? etc., etc." The Restaurant, it is intended, shall not be sur-issed in the city. Refr. shments and luxuries

DRUCS.

And again:

"He has seized upon all the immense patronage of this Government, and avowed his purpose to use it for the restoration of the rebel States to authority, regardless of the rights of the people of the loyal States. He has thus become the ally of the rebels and the open enemy of the loyal white men of the country."

In each case, the electoral votes of the South are the question, the control of them is the object, and the pursuit of them the charge. In 1861, the President "strides headlong to anarchy." In 1864 the President intends "to resort to revolutionary proceedings to consummate the ploe." I have known Hoofand's German Bitters favorably for a number of years. I have used them in my own family, and have been so pleased with their effects, that I was induced to recommend them to many others, and know that they have operated in a strikingly beneficial manner. I take great pleasure in thus publicly proclaiming this fact, and calling the attention of those afficted with the diseases for which they are recommended, to these Bitters, knowing from experience that my recommendation will be sustained. I do this more cheerfully as Hoofand's Bitters in intended to benefit the affilieted, and is "not a rum drink."

Yours, truly.

MORTON AND BROWNLOW THE GRAND ARMY "ENTHUSED!!"

HOW IT WILL BE DONE

The radicals enjoyed quite a treat on Satur day night, through the seeing of two "loyal," upright, moral, God fearing Governors on their stand in the Circle at the same time. The F." of Tennessee, condescended to lend the light of their countenances to the occasion, and to encourage the lesser lights in the good work of abusing the President, and the true friends of the Union who support him.

"Our noble" Governor, leaving the "sympathy" role, which he has assumed so often that it is becoming a little stale, to Brownlow, who sat in a chair on the stand and did his utmost to imitate a "palsied" shake, enlightened the people by a speech delivered in brave defenders of the Union. a standing position.

Brownlow next came forward and, after in forming the audience that he was too unwell rangues by saying that President John after the fall elections they would serve Andy as they had Jeff., capture him and put him in

When he came to speak of the national Union arty, his wrath got the better of him, and he party, his wrath got the better of him, and he lung epithets around promiscuously, calling every body connected with it traitors, apostates harlots, etc., and wound up by advising the party to select their most radical men and elect them, and they would be sure of being in the that "he has no hesitation in saying that he is dently doing a little extra electioneering for Coburn, who was not there to speak for him-

After Brownlow had concluded, the great "S. F." introduces a pot bellied little fellow, who, he informed the audience, was Quartermaster General on Brownlow's staff, and then quietly took his cane and abandoned the scene of action

"THE LOYAL" MENAGERIE, National Union Meeting at Mount Jackson.

IMMENSE ENTHUSIASM.

At an early hour on Saturday evening the ming of the anvil announced that the eting advertised for Mount Jackson was in progress. The Johnson House, in front of which the meeting was held, was handsomely illuminated and decorated by its worthy pro-prietor, O. W. Johnson, who has heretofore een a staunch supporter of the Republican party, but says he can not go the negro suffrage and other fanaticisms of that party, and equently is working for the Nationa Union ticket. Speeches were made by J. B. Ryan, Colonel

Blake and D. J. Callinan. At the conclusion of Mr. Ryan's speech he was presented with a handsome bouquet by Miss. Lizzie Tranb'and Miss. L. Miley on behalf of the ladies of Mount Jackson. The bouquet reflected but the beauty of the fair doners. At a late hour the meeting adjourned with the best of feeling amid the greatest enthu-siasm. Cheer after cheer rent the air for

FRANKLIN, October 5, 1866. EDITOR HERALD-Dear Sir: The above list of names who reported to me, in the las w days, as giving their adhesion to the Dem eratic party. CAPTAIN. W. A. OWEN,

17th Regiment Indiana Volunteers. Another Race Course Murder-Rob-ert Walker, the Well known Horse Trainer, Shot Bend at Centerville

Trainer, Shet Bead at Centerville
Course, Long Island.

While the American Jocky Club are doing all that lies in their power toward the elevation of horse racing to a respectable amusement, the old supporters of the turf, or men who are in league with them, and who seem to know of no higher law in righting a wrong or gratifying a bitter personal feeling than the steel and the builet covertly used, and apparently doing their best to maintain their old reputation. McKeaver, a man who knew not what it was to hurt the feelings of another, it is well known, was brutally murdered at the Chicago race course a few days ago, and, on the very same day that the body of the murdered man was borne to the grave, a scene of blood was being enacted on the Centreville race course, Long Island, the victim being as in the case of poor McKeaver, an owner and driver of crack horses. The facts of the case, as far as ascertained, are as follows: Mr. Robert Walker, who has for years been well known to the sporting community as one of our first trotting trainers and drivers, and who was at the time of his death proprietor of the hotel immediately adjoining the course, on Monday afternoon proceeded to the track with one of the horses under is care, in order to test his powers, it is believed, before having the animal compete for a race that is soon to come off. He had hardly been gone a half hour off. one of the horses under is care, in order to test his powers, it is believed, hefore having the animal compete for a race that is soon to come off. He had hardly been gone a half hour when his family was startled by the arrival of the horse and buggy without a driver. The alarm was given by one of the men at the hotel, and a number of men immediately proceeded to the course to see what had become of Walker. They had hardly gone two hundred yards along the road when they were horrified at the discovery of the dead body of Walker lying at full length on the track. On examination the trail of a bullet was perceived traversing the head. The affair created quite an excitement in the neighborhood, and every effort is being made to discover the murderer. Up to yesterday noon nothing definite had been ascertained as to who that person is, but it was rumored that arrests of certain roughs of the Twelfth Ward in Brooklyn would be made on suspicion of knowing something about the crime. Those who knew Walker intimately contend that the man could not have been killed intentionally, as he had not a personal enemy in the vicinity. Nevertheless, it is sunosed that for some motive or other

The Late Democratic Gains. The Late Democratic Gains.

The latest telegrams from Connecticut report decided gains in the town elections for the conservative tickets, as compared with last year. This matter would hardly be worth alluding to were it not for the bogus telegrams of the Tribune, claiming radical gains when the facts are the other way. There is no sense in electing town constables on national issues, nor should said contests have any political significance. That they are watched and used in partisan warfare shows a serious defect in the workings of our institutions, for considerations of personal fitness are lost when purely local concerns are dwarfed by questions affecting national polities.

The radicals have certainly reduced lying about elections to a science. It is popularly supposed that the Vermont and Maine elections show enormous radical gains over last year, when the fact is that the necrease of votes is largely in favor of the Democrats. In Maine, for instance, the percentage of increase was twenty-five per cent. In favor of the conservatives, and only five per cent. for the radicals.

All this radical lying is to help them in the tions, will allay ALL PAIN and spasmodic action

All this radical lying is to help them in the All this radical lying is to help them in the October elections soon to take place. It serves to create an impression that the country is with them, which reacts upon subsequent political contests. The Tribune of yesterday must have had a new hand at the work of inventing the bogus telegrams from the various points in Connecticut. He inserted the phrase "my policy" into nearly all of them; a thing very unlikely to occur were the despatches really to come from separate points.—New York World.

From the Vicksburg Herald Moody, of Port Gibson. Meedy, of Pert Gibsen.

We regret to state that the report of the death of this gentleman is true. He was killed last Saturday night, by an assassin firing at him through a window, while he was engaged in writing. Colonel Moody was one of the most distinguished artillery officers of General Longstreet's command, during the late war, and on more than one occasion proved his courage and his skill. The fame of Moody's battery is a part of the history of the army of Northern Virginia. He was a man of violent temper, and if, in his own judgment, he was

Northern virginis. He was a man of victors temper, and if, in his own judgment, he was wrongfully oppressed or unjustly treated, he was frequently oppressive to his adversary—sometimes unreasonably so—many of his was frequently oppressive to his adversary—sometimes unreasonably so—many of his friends believed. But when attached to a friend, he was heart and soul enlisted with him, and evinced his idelity by his acts. It never could be said of him, however, in his most desperate moments, that he would not give his enemy "a fair field and an open fight." He was a man of powerful frame, of desperate courage, and unyielding will, and, there is no doubt that his murderer, knowing this feared to brave the changes of an honor-time frame of the frame of the frame of the frame of the series of the frame of the fra

Gin, as a Remedial Agent. GIN, as a remedial agent, has been in favor with the profession for a long period, but owing to the difficulty of obtaining a pure article, it has fallen into disuse in many sections of the country much to the regret of medical men, who conside it almost a specific in very many diseases. Fo all cases of Gravel, pure Gin, if administere under professional guidance, will certainly work a cure; and if taken as a preventive, acting, as a curry and it taken as a preventive, acting, as it does, on the sensitive membranes, it cleanses the parts so as to remove all possible sediment Administered in the same way, it will preven the formation of Calculi, and do away with those terrible operations, therefore, so necessary for population of the United States annually. Pure Gin has this peculiar advantage other diffusible
